Information for consultants from overseas

Medical care in Germany grants patients many rights

Healthcare in Germany is characterised by a high level of autonomy among patients. Patients can select consultants and hospitals themselves in many cases. For us, as a hospital company, this means: We want to impress patients with outstanding medical quality as well as service and friendliness. To do this, Schoen Clinic has relied on a specialisation in neurology, orthopaedics and psychosomatics for many years. We train consultants to become medical specialists above all in these areas, but also in other departments (e.g. internal medicine).

What we offer

- Detailed induction and training curricula
- Interdisciplinary working
- Intensive supervision by senior and head physicians
- Complete training as a specialist possible, also across hospitals where applicable
- Good development and promotion opportunities
- Latest equipment standards (surgery of the future, IT, patient rooms)
- Comprehensive social contributions (e.g. "family service")

Your profile

- Completed medical studies and professional experience as an assistant physician
- Ideally medical specialist level
- Very good knowledge of German ('Fachsprachprüfung Deutsch B2-C1 Medizin')
- Open-mindedness and teamwork as well as sensitivity and empathy when working with patients
- Flexibility and ability to collaborate in an interdisciplinary manner
- Commitment and initiative

Licences to practise medicine and work permits for consultants

You can only request work permits and licences to practise medicine as a consultant following a successfully completed foreign language examination. This is a prerequisite for working as a consultant in one of our hospitals. The applications for this can also be submitted from abroad. Our contact persons will be happy to help you with this.
